Jurisdiction Database

Welcome to the Jurisdiction Database. The Database is a resource center containing information for Affiliates, scholars and others interested in CC's international community.

Research

The Database contains the full text of the Unported and the jurisdiction-specific 3.0 licenses. You can query the database for the full text of the unported and one or more ported licenses. The license texts have been structured according to the tags or keywords.

Query one or more ported licenses (and Unported) for tagged license sections.

Visit the Research page for more information on using the data contained in this database.

Jurisdictions

The CC Affiliate Network consists of 100+ affiliates working in over 70 jurisdictions to support and promote CC activities around the world. Members of the Affiliate Network have formal agreements with Creative Commons. To learn more about the formal CC Team in a jurisdiction or to find out if there is a CC community in a particular jurisdiction, click on the jurisdiction's flag below.

Formal Affiliate Agreements

These jurisdictions have a formal relationship with Creative Commons via an agreement between organizations, universities or individuals in the jurisdiction and CC HQ. If you would like to become involved with Creative Commons in one of these jurisdictions, please click on the flag and use the contact information provided in the side bar.

For more information on what it means to be a formal Affiliate, please see our Affiliates wiki page.

Editing an Affiliate Team Page

There are two ways in which you can edit an Affiliate Team page: 1) with a form or 2) normal wiki editing. Creative Commons suggests you use the form as it provides easy drop-down menus and clear blanks to complete.

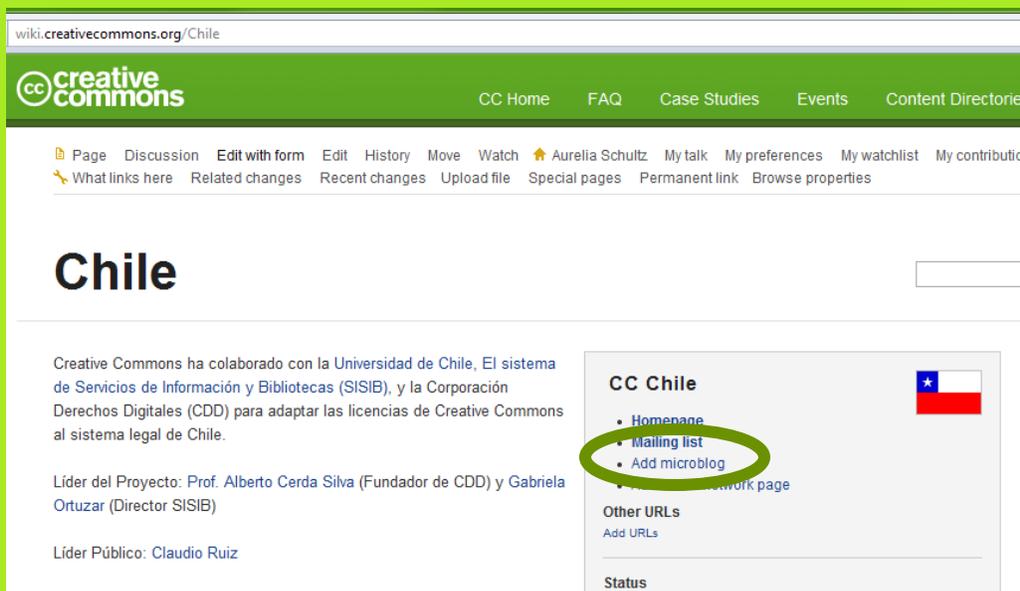

Editing with the Form

Getting to the Form

Option 1: Click on “Edit with form” at the top of the page.

Option 2: Click on an un-bolded “Add x” item on the sidebar.

Working with the Form

Fill in the form as desired. Complete the boxes in the top part of the form and put other information in the free text space at the bottom

Completing Boxes.

It is ok to leave items blank. However, if you do not select an option from the "Jurisdiction status" dropdown menu, your flag will not appear on the main page.

Entering Free Text

The free text box uses semantic wiki formatting. If you are unfamiliar with using semantic wiki, see http://www.mediawiki.org/wiki/Help:Editing_pages.

The information put in the free text box is what shows up on the main part of the Affiliate Team's page.

The team can put whatever CC-related information they want here in whatever language or languages it desires. Examples of what some teams have chosen are below.

CC China used the free text space to present information on its 3.0 Public Discussion, in both English and Chinese.

The screenshot shows the Creative Commons website for China Mainland. The page is in English, with a Chinese version available. The main heading is "China Mainland". Below it, there is a section for "Public Discussion" in English and "公众讨论" in Chinese. The English text describes the public discussion forum and mentions the BY-NC-SA 3.0 license draft. The Chinese text provides a similar overview. A sidebar on the right contains project information: "CC China Mainland" with a Chinese flag, a list of links (Homepage, Mailing list, Mircoblog, Add social network page), "Other URLs", "Status", "Affiliated institution(s)" (Renmin University), "Project lead(s)" (Chunyan Wang), "Mailing address" (info@cn.creativecommons.org), "Region" (Asia-Pacific), and "Most recent ported licenses". At the bottom, there are sections for "China Mainland Case Studies" and "China Mainland Case Law", both indicating no content is currently present for this jurisdiction.

Public Discussion

The public discussion is an open forum where everyone – from lawyers to active license users, from linguists to translators — is invited to contribute.

The BY-NC-SA 3.0 license draft adapted to Chinese law is ready for public discussion. The Chinese and English versions of the BY-NC-SA license are available, as is a summary of the substantial changes proposed by the legal team to port the licenses to China Mainland copyright law.

If you have comments about the license draft, whether in regards to legal, linguistic or usability issues, please feel welcome to use the wiki's discussion page or the CC China Mainland mailing list to share your thoughts.

Comments should be submitted as soon as possible to allow enough time for review.

Thanks to the ongoing efforts of Project Lead Chunyan Wang with the support of Renmin University and the CC China Mainland team.

公众讨论

公众讨论是一个开放的论坛，在这里我们邀请每个人 -从律师到许可协议的活跃用户，从语言学者到翻译- 来贡献一份力量。

根据中国大陆法律本地化的署名-非商业性使用-相同方式共享 3.0许可协议草案已经完成，准备供公众讨论。该协议草案的中英文版本都可以下载，除此之外，还有由项目法律团队准备的在本地化过程中的重要变更的摘要。

如果您对授权草案有任何评论，无论是有关法律、语言或可用性问题，欢迎随时使用 Wiki的讨论页或知识共享中国大陆项目的邮件列表分享您的想法。

CC Guatemala posted general information about its team and activities, with links to more information.

Note that this page can also have pictures and logos.

Guatemala

ABOUT US:

Universidad Francisco Marroquin is a private university in Guatemala, it was founded 1971. The mission of Universidad Francisco Marroquin is to teach and disseminate the ethical, legal and economic principles of a society of free and responsible persons.

A Creative Commons World: Free to Choose, to Create, to Innovate, to Learn, to Imagine Our Chapter was born 2008 we had de honor to host Jimmy Wales. There is a strong link between the University's philosophy and the idea of Creative Commons. Wales mentioned the fact that in order to understand Wikipedia one had to understand the ideas of Friedrich August von Hayek.

Case Studies and Case Law

The Case Studies and Case Law sections that appear on the lower part of the sidebar are automatically populated from the Case Studies and Case Law wiki pages. In order to add information to these sections, you will need to add the information directly to the respective wiki pages. This is easily done with the forms provided on each page.

Adding Case Studies

The Case Studies page collects information about important Creative Commons license use around the world.

To add a case study, go to http://wiki.creativecommons.org/Case_Studies.

Enter a name for your case study in the box under “Add a case study” and click “Add or edit.”

Case Law

The Case Law database collects summaries of court cases involving Creative Commons licensed works or other open source licensed works that may provide important insight into how a court would treat CC licenses. Cases are collected from around the world.

To add a case, go to http://wiki.creativecommons.org/Case_Law.

Click on “Add Decision.”

A screenshot of the Creative Commons Case Law page. The browser address bar shows 'wiki.creativecommons.org/Case_Law' circled in green. The page header includes the Creative Commons logo and navigation links like 'CC Home', 'FAQ', 'Case Studies', 'Events', and 'Content Dire'. Below the header is a user navigation bar with links like 'Page', 'Discussion', 'Edit', 'History', 'Move', 'Watch', 'Aurelia Schultz', 'My talk', 'My preferences', 'My watchlist', 'My contributions', 'Log', 'What links here', 'Related changes', 'Recent changes', 'Upload file', 'Special pages', 'Permanent link', and 'Browse properties'. The main heading is 'Case Law'. Below it is a paragraph explaining the database. A blue button labeled 'Add Decision' is circled in green. Under the heading 'Cases', there is a list of case names, including '09-1684-A (Lichôdmapwa v. L'asbl Festival de Theatre de Spa)', 'Chang v. Virgin Mobile', 'Curry v. Audax', 'Jacobsen v. Katzer', 'SGAE v. Fernandez', and 'TA 3560/09, 3561/09, Avi Re'uveni v. Mapa inc. ישראל: לראשונה, ביהמ"ש אכף רישיון קריאייטיב קומנס'.

When you get to the form, complete the boxes with information about the case, add a summary of the case and upload any court documents, such as opinions or briefs, that you have related to the case.
