

LIST OF SUBSTANTIVE CHANGES BETWEEN UNPORTED AND CR 3.0

1. Inclusion of the phrase “To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law” to ss 5-6, and to the disclaimer in the sections entitled “On your relationship with Creative Commons” and “Creative Commons Notice”. Section 5 also contains the following:
 - a. “This Section does not affect in any way the right of redress through other legal instruments, without limitation, tort, acquired rights, rights created by consumer protection legislation, administrative measures or constitutional jurisdiction.”
2. Removed phrase “to the extent this license may be considered to be a contract”, because the licence is a contract in Civil jurisdictions (“contrato de licencia”), so this phrase is superfluous.
3. Definitions in Section 1 have been reordered alphabetically.
4. Moral rights are not waivable in Costa Rica, so 4(f) reflects that. The section now reads: “Moral rights remain unaffected to the extent they are recognized and not waivable by applicable law.”
5. s 4(e) has been left untouched, only replacing “Jurisdiction” with “Wherever”.
6. Inclusion of references to the Costa Rican law in section 8(f).
7. 4. Caps are not necessary in Costa Rica.